Offshore Technology

Offshore oil well technology started around 1891 when the first oil well was drilled from a platform built on piles over the seabed in Ohio, USA. In the early 1970's, the premier oil company of India, ONGC discovered a large oil field, now called Mumbai High, off the western coast of India. This discovery, along with subsequent discoveries in the Western Offshore changed the oil & gas scenario of India.

Today, offshore fields are even more important with the decline of onshore fields and the huge potential reserves that lie in the deep ocean.

About the Department

The Department of Petroleum Technology was established in 1969 to fulfil the manpower needs of the petroleum sector and strives for the advancement of knowledge in this field.

The department was recognized by TIFAC, Department of Science and Technology, Government of India as one of its Centers of Relevance and Excellence (TIFAC-CORE) in India under Mission REACH in 2000.

About the Workshop

The 2-day workshop will deliberate on the challenges and advancements in application of offshore technologies in the Indian scenario. The focus of the workshop is to provide an exposure to the existing state of art in offshore petroleum industry, with an opportunity to interact with the leading experts in India.
